Tutor biography

Sarah Burton

Sarah has been teaching Creative Writing since 2003 in a variety of contexts, from voluntary work in mental health centres and primary schools to professional tuition for the London School of Journalism, Oxford University’s Department for Continuing Education (OUDCE) and Cambridge University’s Institute of Continuing Education (ICE). Her publications are diverse, including two critically acclaimed biographies, Impostors: Six Kinds of Liar (2000; translated into Korean, Japanese, Czech and Spanish) and A Double Life: a Biography of Charles and Mary Lamb (2003; shortlisted for the Mind Book of the Year award); a children’s book, The Miracle in Bethlehem: A Storyteller’s Tale (2008), and a page-to-stage guide, How to Put on a Community Play (2011). She also writes short stories and reviews fiction and non-fiction for The Spectator and other titles. Her spoof, The Complete and Utter History of the World By Samuel Stewart, Aged 9, was published by Short Books in 2013. She was Writer in Residence for the Hosking Houses Trust in 2009 and the publication of the historical novel which she began there, H, was shortlisted for the Lucy Cavendish Fiction Prize 2013. She has also written and produced several community plays. Sarah’s range of writing interests is reflected in her teaching. She has taught courses for OUDCE and ICE in Life Writing, Writing for Children, Playwriting, Flash Fiction and Writing Short Stories. She is Course Director of the MSt in Creative Writing at ICE.

Aims:

Students will develop their ability to deliver creative writing as a subject by:
- engaging with a range of writing exercises which they can then use in their own classrooms;
- becoming more aware of how to create a classroom culture which can encourage creativity in writing.

Content:

The nuts and bolts of creative writing will be covered: genre; style and narrative voice; point-of-view; recruiting the reader; creating a sense of place; determining time and tense; developing character; dialogue; plot; creating drama; sustaining tension; maintaining pace.

Students will consider how different approaches to teaching Creative Writing are appropriate to different age groups and how mixed ability groups are managed. They will also engage in writing exercises designed to focus on specific aspects of Creative Writing, while gaining a deeper understanding of how these are all codependent. These exercises also help teachers understand the nature of the challenge that students face when we ask them to write.

Presentation of the course:

The prevailing atmosphere in the classroom is relaxed and mutually supportive while remaining focused. We will read some short examples of writing together and discuss them. We will do some exercises as individuals and some in groups. Tutors will share their teaching philosophies and strategies and demonstrate these. Students will be able to keep teaching materials and are free to use them in their own classrooms.

Outcomes:

As a result of the course, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:
- Approach teaching Creative Writing with increased confidence and knowledge
- Create and develop their own class materials.
Listed below are a number of texts that might be of interest for future reference, but do not need to be bought (or consulted) for the course.
