Course syllabus

Aims:

To read New Testament passages in Greek, and to understand their language and background, with short extracts from the Septuagint for comparison.

Content:

Mark chapters 4 and 5
Luke chapters 23 and 24
Acts chapters 17, 18 and 19
Genesis chapter 9 verses 1-17
Psalm 24 (Septuagint and RC Lectionary; = 25 in most modern translations)

The course involves study of Greek grammar and vocabulary, as well as the historical, literary and theological background of the texts being read.

Presentation of the course:

The sessions consist of oral presentation and class discussion. Students read aloud and translate (in turn, and with suitable help) extracts from texts they have prepared in advance. Linguistic features and subject matter are explained and discussed, taking account of differing interpretations where appropriate.

As a result of the course, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

1. Read New Testament Greek with greater fluency and enjoyment: grammar and vocabulary will be explained, revised and consolidated. Allowance will be made for students with different levels of Greek.

2. Have increased knowledge of literary genres and of the historical circumstances in which the texts were written: we shall consider how ancient readers might have approached New Testament texts based on their familiarity with the Jewish scriptures and/or classical literature.
